6. Coastal Hazards Strategy

Chris Dolley and Simon Bendall presented a high level overview of the Strategy process to date. Discussions traversed:

- The Strategy is now in Stage 4 (Implementation Planning and Response) of a four-stage development process which began in 2014
- The vision for the Strategy is that Communities and businesses are resilient to the effects of coastal hazards
- Hazards in scope are inundation and coastal erosion
- Stage 1 (Defining the Problem) was the identification of the extent of coastal erosion and coastal inundation hazards out to 2120 and the risks these present
- Stage 2 (Framework and Decision) included the development of a decision-making framework for the 100-year Strategy, based on a community decision-making model – guided in part by the Ministry for the Environment’s guidance for local government
- An initial funding model including the proposed establishment of a Coastal Contributory Fund was developed
- Stage 3 (Develop Response) commenced in 2017 and involves the implementation of the decision-making framework developed in Stage 2
- The Northern and Southern Assessment panels considered 16 coastal units, and of those 9 were prioritised for assessment.
- Six potential pathways were developed for each priority unit
- The Assessment panels developed a 100-year pathway and each pathway is built from a combination of short, medium and long term hazard response actions
- Capital construction and maintenance costs for each pathway were introduced
- Each pathway is adaptive and each timeline (short, medium and long term hazard response) can be brought forward or delayed, depending on environmental influences like sea level rise
- The Strategy will be reviewed every 10 years to ensure that the pathways remain fit for purpose
- Challenges around funding matters, particularly on questions of responsibility and accountability for establishing a Coastal Contributory Fund remain unresolved
- A comprehensive update on the various work streams is provided in the agenda item
- Consensus reached that a contributory fund should be created, but different views on how this should work (Lead Agency, Governance, Asset (debt) ownership)
- Suggested pathway forward will be to increase base project funding, work towards a decision on contributory fund and funding model, public consultation and introduction of a new Rate
- A one page summary of discussions will be provided to each partner council following each Joint Committee meeting, with the relevant Council’s TAG member present to answer any technical questions
- Explanation of potential Coastal Contributory fund models and the associated rules and regulations to be provided to next Joint Committee meeting
- The previous draft Funding Deed will be distributed to members
- Proposed to have a Coastal Hazards briefing workshop with all elected representatives from all partner Councils (preferably early March).
